

INNOVATION JOURNALISM

News Flash

Stanford, 3 March 2005

The Second Conference on Innovation Journalism

Stanford University, 4-6 April 2005

Update: Registration and Preliminary Program

The Second Conference on Innovation Journalism will be held at Stanford University, Oak Lounge Tresidder Union, April 4-6, 2005. The conference is free of charge and includes a reception and a dinner.

Preliminary Conference Program:

http://www.innovationjournalism.org/archive/NF-030305_InJo_Conference_Program.pdf

We are still assigning speakers and panelists. An updated program will be available before the conference.

Application for participation in the conference:

www.stanford.edu/dept/scil/InJo-2005

The seating is limited. While the conference is open for all interested professionals and academics, please note the following:

- Publishing and journalism professionals, including journalism researchers, lecturers & students, are given priority at the first two days of the conference, "Practicing Innovation Journalism" and "Publishing Innovation Journalism".
- At the last day of the conference, "The Role of Journalism in Innovation Systems", priority is also given to innovation and public policy professionals/experts.

Further Information:

General Information:

Annette Eldredge, Conference Coordinator. Eldredge @ stanford.edu, +1 (650) 724-6483

Conference Program:

Niclas Lilja, Conference Press Contact, lilja @ stanford.edu, +1 (650) 283-8848

Melinda Sacks, Conference+SCIL Press Contact, msacks @ stanford.edu

David Nordfors, Co Chair Conference, nordfors @ stanford.edu, +1 (650) 924-0226